

In the picture, there is a white marking point in the top left corner of the core board, which serves as a reference point. From this reference point, downwards, it is the 1st pin.

Core board shielding cover effect drawing